IMPACT REPORT

ENVISIONING A WORLD IN WHICH PHYSICAL AND SPIRITUAL HUNGER ARE MET THROUGH GOD'S GRACE AND ABUNDANCE

2017
About
A Concept That Makes It All Possible

Envisioning a world in which physical and spiritual hungers are met through God's grace and abundance.

Mission
The Society of St. Andrew introduces people to God's grace in Jesus Christ through meeting their hungers, offering:
» Food for the body
» God's word for the spirit
» Community of love for the heart
» Opportunity for those who desire action

Core Values
» Faith We are called to love God and love our neighbors as ourselves. This is reflected in all that we do. We demonstrate the power and effectiveness of a true Christian community in addressing critical problems, particularly hunger.

» Compassion We believe in living a just lifestyle and in sharing our resources and the world's with those whose basic needs are not being met.

» Stewardship We seek to make the most and best use of all resources, in a way that demonstrates competence, justice, and sharing.

» Service We are called to love, not just in words, but in deed and in truth. This serves as the foundation for all that we do. We provide opportunities for others to serve, fostering renewal in people's lives, in congregations, and in the communities in which we serve.

Impact Report 2017 was designed and produced in-house by Jenny Trevey & Mike Hickcox.
Let us love not only in words, but in deed and in truth.

Executive Director Message

With your help, the Society of St. Andrew brings people together to harvest and share healthy food, reduce waste, and build caring communities by offering nourishment to hungry neighbors.

The mission is commonsense, and the work is simply connecting the dots. A combination of broad, national partnerships and intense, hyper-local networks link generous food providers, willing volunteers, and social service agencies.

Farmers with excess or unmarketable food open their fields, orchards, or packing sheds for Society of St. Andrew volunteers to glean (pick, dig, or gather) that good food. Soup kitchens, shelters, big food banks and small local food pantries, senior or child nutrition programs, and emergency or disaster relief programs get the food to the tables of people who need it most.

Board Chair Message

Thank you for making the Society of St. Andrew what it is today – a dedicated, faithful organization that annually gleans tens of millions of pounds of food which feeds millions of hungry people. And perhaps more importantly, an organization that connects heart, mind, spirit, and body in the privilege of acting out our faith to serve those less fortunate.

As I assume the role of chairman, I am encouraged by Lynette Johnson's thoughtful and strategic view of the organization, and I am grateful to my predecessor, Ann Vest, for her wise leadership over the past two years. I am also grateful to be part of a board that is actively engaged in the strategic decisions the board must make in order to grow and thrive.

In many ways, SoSA is the embodiment of a ministry that is thousands of years old – gathering food from fields where it would rot, were it not for our volunteers who harvest and distribute this produce. While we strive to do more, we must also strive to do good. That may sound obvious, but one of the challenges we hope to tackle this year is how to impact more people with the food we harvest and also with the relationships we make.

The board, staff, and I welcome your ideas as we continue forward in this age-old ministry.
Potato & Produce Project

Broadly-focused and national in scope, the Potato & Produce Project transports large loads (10,000 pounds or more) of fresh fruits and vegetables from farms and packing houses to food banks around the country, often working with congregations and civic organizations though “produce drops” to bag and distribute this good food.

Seed Potato Project

Regionally-focused, the Seed Potato Project works throughout the Appalachian states (from Ohio to Tennessee) to share seed potatoes each spring with low-income families who own their own land, but cannot afford to grow their own food. These seed potatoes provide an eight-fold yield at harvest, nourishing the family that planted them and their community.

Gleaning Network

Intensely-focused and hyper-local in operation, the Gleaning Network mobilizes tens of thousands of volunteers each year to glean food that remains after commercial harvest from fields or orchards within a few miles of their home. Most of this food (16+ million pounds a year) rides in volunteers’ trunks, backseats, and pickup beds to nearby feeding agencies, where it is often served or shared with people in need the same day it was harvested!

Harvest of Hope

Promoting all of the Society of St. Andrew core values, Harvest of Hope—a mission trip program with emphasis on gleaning, hunger education, and advocacy—calls volunteers to deeper faith, greater stewardship, and a broader commitment to take action against hunger in their own communities.

In this year’s Impact Report, you will see what your gifts have accomplished in the last year, through big numbers and bright pictures, through stories and through the words of people involved in the ministry: donors, volunteers, produce providers, feeding agency staffers, and food recipients.

Thank you for caring about the environment and for caring about our hungry neighbors. Because of you, health and hope are on the table!

Ingrid Olson
Sustainable Funding Mix

Funding Comes from Three Primary Sources

- Faith Community income: representing many denominations and faith communities from all 50 states. (30.6% of cash income in 2017)
- Individual income: from faithful donors in all 50 states (31.6% in 2017)
- Foundation and Corporate income: both secular and faith-based, covering most of the U.S. (37.9% in 2017)

This diverse and strong funding mix is just part of the reason the Society of St. Andrew has been successful for 38 years, regardless of the general economic environment.

Promoting Good Stewardship

Our overarching operating principle is one of good stewardship. Just as we believe in good stewardship of our nation’s food resources, so also we believe in good stewardship of the financial resources that make this ministry possible. When you share over 85 million servings of highly nutritious food with people in need at a cost of just 3¢ per serving, every penny counts. That is why SoSA stays focused on essential program activity and does not get side-tracked in unrelated programs and initiatives. Good stewardship also keeps SoSA’s overhead costs low.

Food Insecurity

Erodes people’s health, setting the stage for them to develop a host of mental and physical health problems. They are less able to manage chronic health conditions, and our research has shown that over the course of a year, ...adults in severely food-insecure households consume 2.5 times the health-care dollars of those who are food secure. By the time people are struggling to put food on the table, they are compromising many other expenditures. They are probably behind in the rent and bill payments, and forgoing necessities such as prescription medications.

Reverend Willie Petty is SoSA’s gleaning coordinator for a large part of the State of Mississippi. He coordinates with farmers who donate food from their fields, with volunteers who pick the crops, and with agencies that distribute the produce to people in need. SoSA has about 40 gleaning coordinators in fifteen states, coordinating thousands of gleaning events every year.

Kelley Patient is a dedicated volunteer in Tennessee. One day, she planned to glean bell peppers, but was worried about a hurricane approaching her family back in Florida. She decided to spend the day helping others anyway. The peppers she gleaned that day went to a soup kitchen where they were served to hungry people the same evening. And her family in Florida was unhurt by the storm. Last year, millions of people received nutritious produce because Kelley and more than 36-thousand other volunteers committed some of their own time and effort to pick and bag food for others.
Refugees from all over the globe gather weekly in East Charlotte, North Carolina, to receive food, help with government forms, and classes in language and culture. Each Wednesday, for the past eight years, our drivers have delivered about 2,000 pounds of fresh produce (and sometimes fish) to the Refugee Support Center.

Walter Gross and his son, Ronnie, have shared apples and peaches with SoSA for the past 25 years. Their Bedford, Virginia orchards have been an esteemed family business for more than a century. Walter and Ronnie see working with SoSA as a way to give back to their community. They also like to see SoSA volunteers in their orchards, learning about agriculture and making the effort to feed people in need. In 2017, more than 900 farms provided fruits and vegetables to hungry individuals and families through SoSA gleanings and crop drops.
I have praised this organization before, and gladly do so again. They reclaim good food that otherwise would go to waste, and they distribute it to people who need it. Win-Win! They provide opportunities for volunteers to get out into the fields to see where food comes from, and for people of faith to put that faith into action (and get their hands dirty). They reduce environmental hazards due to wasted food; they increase nutritional well-being for people who don't regularly receive fresh food. Makes sense on so many levels. I have gladly supported them for more than 30 years.

I've been gleaning fields with the Society of St. Andrew team in Charlotte, NC for a couple years now. In my mind, there is NO better group to work with because these folks Really care about the people we're feeding, the farmers donating crops AND the gleaners who volunteer. It's a great way to teach your children to volunteer and help those less fortunate than ourselves since people of all ages can participate. With the help of SoSA, we truly are "being the change we want to see in the world".

There are a few things I care deeply about—sharing God's blessings more equitably, using resources well, and working in community to solve problems. The Society of St. Andrew does all three.

Thank you for your recent donation of 400 pounds of potatoes. Each month our pantry responds to approximately 95 household visits, providing over 5,000 meals to our neighbors in need. Clients choose their own food, based on their individual preferences, needs and circumstances. We take pride in offering a wide variety of shelf-stable foods, fresh produce, dairy, bread/bakery and personal care items.

Our BackPack Program helps children identified by the school as being at risk of hunger at home. Those students are provided with a bag of child-friendly and nutritious food items for each weekend. Our goal is to reduce the hunger gap and help those children return to school better prepared to learn and achieve academic success.
The hunger-relief work of the Society of St. Andrew is made possible by the generous support of these financial contributors and countless others who remain anonymous.

Society of St. Andrew has published spiritual life and faith development resources as part of its commitment to feed spiritual hungers. In 2017, SoSA's Advent devotions, Lenten devotions, Good Friday Fast booklets, and Vacation Bible School materials were utilized in their print forms by more than 89,550 individuals and congregations in 47 states and several countries. Thousands more utilized these resources through free downloads from the Society of St. Andrew website, EndHunger.org.

Legacy Partners
Thirteen individuals and couples have chosen to become Legacy Partners with Society of St. Andrew. Each has included SoSA in their will or trust so they can continue to feed hungry people even past their lifetimes. We are grateful for their commitment and support. Please contact us if you are interested in becoming a Legacy Partner.
